

Results of the Biennial Preponderance Review in the Broadcasting Sector by the IFT

Mexico City, April 30, 2024 – Grupo Televisa, S.A.B. (“Televisa” or the “Company”; NYSE:TV; BMV:TLEVISA CPO) informs that the Federal Telecommunications Institute (“IFT”) notified the ruling of their biennial review proceeding to modify, add, and remove some of the existing preponderance measures in the broadcasting sector.

The modifications to the previous ruling include: updating requirements and specific elements to be considered in the Public Offering of Passive Infrastructure and its Electronic Management System (SEG), including in connection with tariffs negotiation; the prohibition to acquire Relevant Audiovisual Content on an exclusive basis continues, unless the right to sublicense such content to other broadcasters in Mexico is acquired; and the addition of specific requirements for the provision of advertising services, particularly for the promotion of telecommunications services.

Televisa will continue to assess the scope of this resolution and will analyze any action and/or measures that may be appropriate.

About Televisa

Grupo Televisa S.A.B. (“Televisa”) is a major telecommunications corporation which owns and operates one of the most significant cable companies as well as a leading direct-to-home satellite pay television system in Mexico. Televisa’s cable business offers integrated services, including video, high-speed data and voice to residential and commercial customers as well as managed services to domestic and international carriers. Televisa owns a majority interest in Sky, a leading direct-to-home satellite pay television system and broadband provider in Mexico. Televisa holds a number of concessions by the Mexican government that authorizes it to broadcast programming over television stations for the signals of TelevisaUnivision, Inc. (“TelevisaUnivision”), and Televisa’s cable and DTH systems. In addition, Televisa is the largest shareholder of TelevisaUnivision, a leading media company producing, creating, and distributing Spanish-speaking content through several broadcast channels in Mexico, the US and over 50 countries through television networks, cable operators and over-the-top or “OTT” services.
